Report of the School Board

In accordance with the law, we hereby submit our report of the schools of Londonderry for the year ending March 1, 1886.

To the citizens of the town of Londonderry:

One of our number, Mr. Charles G. Pillsbury, who was elected by the Board to visit and superintend the schools, labored with us through the first session, when he sought, we trust a more pleasurable as well as profitable employment in the far West. As he did not tender his resignation until about the beginning of the third session, we thought best after making several unsuccessful attempts to fill the vacancy, to leave it unfilled until the next annual meeting of the district. Mr. Pillsbury having failed to make a report of the schools during his supervision, we are unable to report them in detail. Our effort has been in all cases to act in accordance with the known wishes of the town, and for the welfare of all the schools. We have made but few changes in the general management of the schools. We have endeavored to give each scholar an equal amount of schooling, as was the intention of the school law passed at the last session of the Legislature. Schools have been maintained the past year in each of the districts throughout the town, and have been attended with general prosperity. In most of them a good degree of excellence has been attained. After making suitable inquiries and the most persistent effort to obtain good teachers we have in a few instances met with disappointment. It requires but little effort to employ the first applicant who may make herself known, whether qualified or unqualified, but to exercise a fair judgement, make proper inquiries and exertions with a view to obtain the best teacher is a task that is sometimes difficult to satisfactorily perform.

TEACHERS.

During the year fourteen different teachers were employed, all of whom were females, and with two exceptions, teachers of experience. Without exception we think that our teachers tried in faithfulness to accomplish what they could for the good of the schools. If the work of any has not been as satisfactory as might be wished, the failure can be attributed to inexperience or local difficulties. If enough has not already been said concerning our teachers, we will say here, that we have confidence in them ; and while we do not claim for them perfection in their profession, we do say that they are an honest body of teachers, earnestly seeking after the best methods and best results, laboring for the good of their schools, the individuals and the community, and with the continued confidence of the parents and citizens, we may hope for results which can be attained in no other way.

ATTENDANCE.

A prompt and constant attendance of pupils is essential to the best general results of a school. Are our boys and girls receiving the greatest possible benefit that they should from the money appropriated for school purposes? The large number of absent marks (four thousand and twelve cases reported in the registers), seem to suggest a negative answer. Who is responsible for this loss of schooling ! Nos. 1, 3 and 6, present the most praise-worthy examples in their percentage of daily attendance for the year. Forest G. Kimball, only five years of age, living in No. 6, a mile or more from school, deserves special mention for his perseverance in not being absent or tardy during the whole school year. Tardiness is another evil, and the permission of it in school is but a training of our children to bad business habits, and a tardy person in any capacity is an annoyance. With few exceptions, a child who is to attend school, may be in his seat at the appointed time, and any failure should be accompanied with a good excuse from the parents, who should co-operate in the endeavor to train the child in the way he should go.

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE.

True discipline has for its aim the training of the mind and is distinct from punishment, except as the latter may be a means to secure the end and is a part of a child's training.

The discipline of a school is seen in the lessons as well as in the quiet moments of the pupils. The teacher who allows pupils to read prose in a monotonous manner, or to spell rapidly without pronouncing each syllable in the word, fails in true discipline. The orderly passing to and from the room contributes much to the attractiveness of the school, but more to the advancement of the children, making them orderly instead of abrupt, graceful rather than awkward and tends to that polite and courteous manner which elevates the mind. For these reasons the discipline should extend to the playground by the teacher's presence as much as possible. Under her watchful care profanity and vulgarity can be prevented, rough plays, incorrect language and bad manners improved.

TEXT BOOKS.

No change has been made in school books during the year except to introduce Meservey's Political Economy, as a test book, which in our judgement is well adapted to the wants of our schools. Those wishing to purchase the same can find a supply at Mr. William P. Nevins', at a reduced price of forty cents per copy. Some of our most able teachers have suggested that a change in reading books is much needed, as the readers now used have been in use nearly ten years. We recommend this change to our successors in office, trusting they will be more competent to make the selection.
